My main reason for choosing James Cook University in Singapore was its reputation as a high quality Australian university coupled up with Singapore's reputation as the education hub for Asia. I am currently completing an MBA (Marketing) at the Singapore Campus. I am very pleased with the high standard of education that the university is providing and the excellent pool of lecturers imparting their knowledge and expertise. The course content reflects contemporary trends in the business world. I am confident that my MBA from James Cook University in Singapore will stand me in good stead for the future.
